Norwegian Pilots and Cabin Attendants approved their first italian Collective Corporate Agreement

Pilots and Cabin Crews of Norwegian airline operating in Italy and members of ANPAC have approved their first italian Collective Corporate Agreement.

The final text of the document, recently signed by Norwegian's Managing Director Byorn Erik Barman, was submitted by ANPAC to ballot for ratification among ANPAC members. The result was a plebiscite and the Collective Agreement will be applied starting from next October 1st.

It is a pretty important event for the air transport system of Italy; it actually proves that by means of an open and balanced social dialogue a modern, efficient airline company being capable of pursuing the future without prejudice can operate by guaranteeing adequate economic and regulatory conditions to its flying crews while mantaining competitiveness.

ANPAC, while being deeply involved and concerned in support to Ryanair Pilots and Cabin Attendants at national level, hopes that the irish company may soon give up with its closure attitude by allowing a collective bargaining to its employees.
